Forecast For Strathclyde
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Wednesday 07 Jul 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mostly dry with sunny spells.

Today:
A largely dry day with sunny spells, although low cloud will affect the Isles early morning and perhaps in the afternoon. A few scattered showers could break out in the afternoon, most likely in the east. Maximum temperature 22 deg C (72 deg F).

Tonight:
A mainly dry evening and night. Clear spells at first inland, but low cloud increases along the coast overnight, thickening across the Isles to give a little drizzle later. Minimum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Thursday:
A dry day. Rather cloudy, but with some bright spells too. Winds will be light, mainly from the west. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Showers breaking out by day, these heavier and more widespread over the weekend. Winds mostly light.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.